Groundbreaking Disney Junior Series 'Doc McStuffins' Celebrates 10th Anniversary

Disney Branded Television is adding new titles to a growing slate of premium original programming for kids, tweens, teens and families across Disney+ and Disney Channels. Disney Branded Television President Ayo Davis announced these projects along with some key casting news today during the Television Critics Association's Winter Press

Tour, where she welcomed the press and delivered an overview of the brand's legacy, values and content pipeline.

The titles that were announced today across the live-action, unscripted and animated space underscore Disney Branded Television's commitment to serving audiences with exceptional, imaginative and aspirational stories from fresh, diverse voices and talent.

Davis also announced that acclaimed singer-songwriter Rita Ora will join the cast of the "Beauty and the Beast" (working title) prequel limited series, GRAMMY® and Tony Award® winner Daveed Diggs will narrate the "The Crossover" series. Announced earlier today, Tony and Academy Award® winner Catherine Zeta-Jones joins the cast of the "National Treasure" series, and Michelle Yeoh stars alongside an international cast in the upcoming series "American Born Chinese."

Davis said: "With each one of these projects, we see an opportunity to build upon the strong foundation of storytelling that is a hallmark of the Disney brand. I am so proud to be working with some of the most creative and diverse talent in the industry, both in front of and behind the camera, to bring these fresh, inventive and impactful stories — new and reimagined — to life for our audiences to enjoy, regardless of platform."

Additionally, during today's presentation, Davis announced a milestone as Disney Junior's groundbreaking animated series "Doc McStuffins" will turn 10 this year. Since it premiered in March 2012, the Peabody Award-winning series — the first animated series for preschoolers to feature a Black female lead — has helped open the door for other representation breakthroughs in media and even inspired some entries to the medical field. To celebrate the anniversary, a new animated music special inspired by the pioneering series is in the works for a debut later this year, and Disney Junior will air episodes daily throughout the month of March, including a marathon on Wednesday, March 23, the anniversary of its premiere. In addition, Disney Junior will unveil a new 10th anniversary Doc McStuffins doll from its licensee Just Play, and Walt Disney Records will debut a new digital single, "The Doc is 10," performed by Laya DeLeon Hayes on Friday, March 18.
