CONRAD GREEN

Executive Producer of ABC's "Dancing with the Stars"

Conrad Green began his career as a factual and entertainment producer in the UK in the 1990s. He worked on hits such as "Ibiza Uncovered," "The Pride of Britain Awards" and "Guinness World Records," before show-running and launching the seminal shows at the dawn of UK reality TV: "Big Brother" and "Popstars." In the UK, he originated shows for all the major networks, ran a unit at the BBC and received awards from the Montreal TV Festival, Royal Television Society, Broadcast, National Television Awards and BAFTA.

Since moving to the U.S., Green served as an executive on "World Idol" and "All-American Girl," before overseeing "Dancing with the Stars" for ABC as showrunner for the first 18 seasons and rejoining the show as showrunner for season 31 in 2022. In the interim, he show-ran "Crime Scene Kitchen," "Utopia," "You the Jury," "My Kitchen Rules" and "Ultimate Tag" for Fox; "The Gong Show" and "Don't" for ABC; and "Go Big Show" for TBS, as well as developing projects for numerous networks. For his work on "Dancing with the Stars," he has received People's Choice, GLAAD and TV Guide Awards, and been nominated for multiple Producers Guild Awards and eight times for the Emmys.
