ABC's "Bachelor in Paradise"

Wells Adams initially gained recognition as a contestant on the 12th season of the ABC hit series "The Bachelorette," which aired in 2016. Although he didn't win the competition, his witty and charming personality made him an instant fan favorite.

Currently, he can be seen on "Bachelor in Paradise" where he's served as the beloved bartender and "voice of reason" to the cast for the past five seasons. This is his sixth year as bartender.

After his appearance on "The Bachelorette," Adams continued his journey to find love on the third season of "Bachelor in Paradise" in 2016, where he pursued several romantic connections and became known for his humorous and laid-back demeanor. He has also since hosted several dates on "The Bachelor" and "The Bachelorette," where he showcased his unique humor.

In fall 2022, Adams hosted the Hulu Original series, "Best In Dough," which followed pizza competitors from all walks of life showcasing their pizza-slinging skills and battle it out for $10,000.

In addition to his work on screen, Adams currently hosts and produces the wildly popular "Your Favorite Thing Podcast" with Brandi Cyrus, which boasts well over 2 million downloads and counting. Additionally, he co-hosts and produces the new iHeartMedia podcast "Two Dudes In A Kitchen" alongside celebrity chef Tyler Florence.

Adams also does red-carpet duty for E!, where he's served as the pre-show host for award shows including the Emmys®, Golden Globes®, GRAMMYS® and the Oscars®.
